If you're looking for a Veteran who possesses courage and inspiration, you'll find him in Adam Mecham. Mecham is an Army Veteran who served 6 years as a Military Police Officer and was deployed for a total of two years to Iraq and Afghanistan.

As a trained Combat Life Saver in the military, Adam became passionate for ensuring the safety and well-being of others. With an appetite for reaching out, Adam's goal is to build infrastructure in 3rd world countries, while also working as a Safety Manager for a large, wind energy company.

Realizing that specialized training and education would be a requirement in order for him to achieve his goals, Adam researched many training programs and ultimately decided on Airstreams Technical Institute. Although money was a challenge for Adam, he didn't let that be a barrier to his success. He saved money for four months in order to afford the funding necessary for him to attend. Adam successfully graduated the 20-Day Comprehensive Wind Turbine Technician class on July 8, 2011.

With a goal of traveling and gaining experience at wind farms throughout the country, Adam is focused and ready to begin submitting his updated resume to energy companies.

Through the experience and knowledge Adam will gain, beginning with his Airstreams certifications and continuing through his career in wind, Adam will be able to eventually meet his long-term goal of helping to create strength and stability through renewable energy in 3rd world countries.
