Justin Jarquin

US Army

Hiring Company:

Class: Industrial Safety

Graduated 7/15/2011

Justin Jarquin is a shining example of doing “whatever it takes” to get the job done! After separating from the U.S. Army, Justin worked temporary construction jobs, never knowing how long they would last and what his next job would be. In hopes of getting into a new career with long-term benefits, Justin connected with representatives from U.S. Vets and SBCC. With their assistance, Justin was able to attend ARI Technical Institute’s kick-off Industrial Safety Course, which started on July 5, 2011.

By July 20, Justin had graduated from the course with a number of valuable certifications, shaved his facial hair in order to be more professional-looking and clean-cut, and completed his 2nd interview with Chesapeake Energy Corporation!

Throughout Justin’s training and even after his graduation, he was a strong influence on his class mates, ensuring they all worked as team players and keeping them positive when things got challenging. “I’m most excited about the prospect of finally being hired onto a permanent job with a large company”, Justin states. If he did not attend Airstreams, who knows how long he would have had to continue working temporary jobs.

Justin will be taking his newfound knowledge, along with the free, high-quality equipment (jacket, boots, gloves, shirts) he received from U.S. Vets, into his future with Chesapeake!
